

Statement of Olivia Choe
Candidate for Steering Committee
Corporation, Finance & Securities Law Community

I am a litigation partner at Milbank LLP in our white-collar and regulatory enforcement practice. Before joining Milbank, I spent eight years at the Securities and Exchange Commission, including serving as the Chief Litigation Counsel for the Division of Enforcement, where I oversaw the nationwide litigation and trial program. I also spent several years as a federal prosecutor in the Southern District of Florida. I began my career as a law clerk to Judge John M. Walker, Jr. (Second Circuit), and Judge Rya W. Zobel (District of Massachusetts), and as a litigation associate at Ropes & Gray LLP. I am a graduate of Harvard College and Yale Law School.

As a new member of the Corporation, Finance, and Securities Law Community, I welcome the chance to enhance networking within the Community, develop opportunities for thought leadership, and promote connections between the bar, financial institutions, and regulatory agencies.
